HOME WEDDING

MISS MARTHA PORTER AND MR. SEYMOUR THOMPSON UNITED AT BRIDE'S HOME

One of the most beautiful weddings of the season took place Thursday evening, October 11, at the home of Mrs. William Stratton Porter, 823 North Brand boulevard, when about 75 of the older friends of the Porter and Thompson families gathered to witness the marriage of Miss Martha Newman Porter and Mr. Seymour Thompson.

The spacious Porter home was exquisitely and appropriately decorated for the ceremony, strands of greenery combining effectively with the bouquets of huge yellow and white chrysanthemums used profusely throughout the rooms.

Before the ceremony Miss Lois Jones, the well known harpist of Los Angeles, gave a program of beautiful selections, closing with "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms," just before she began playing the wedding march from "Lohengrin." Little Misses Beatrice and Margaret, daughters of the Holtby-Myers, of Mt. Washington, stretched gauze ribbons from the staircase to the chancel that had been arranged in the music room, forming an aisle for the bridal party. Little Miss Helen Young of Los Angeles, cousin of the groom, appeared preceding the bridal party. On a satin cushion fashioned with bows and streamers of tulle, she carried the wedding ring. Following her came the groom with his best man, Corporal Arthur Bogush, of the Coast Artillery. Miss Elizabeth Porter, sister of the bride and her maid of honor, was most beautiful in a gown of pink and canary changeable taffeta, wearing gold slippers and carrying a bouquet of Ophelia roses that reflected the gorgeous tints of her gown. Preceding the bride was her flower girl, her small niece, Martha Lowsley, of Santa Barbara, scattering rose petals from a gold basket. Lastly came the beautiful bride, supported by her brother, Mr. William S. Porter, of Santa Barbara, who gave her away. She was lovely in a gown of white crepe meteor, embroidered in seed pearls, with

MERCHANTS' CO-OPERATION WEEK

Beginning Monday of next week the Evening News will discuss the advantages to be gained by the co-operation of merchants among themselves and among the people of the community in which they are doing business. It has been said that there are merchants who have been doing business in Glendale for several months and these same merchants have not a speaking acquaintance with more than 10 per cent of the merchants doing business on the same street or boulevard. This is not as it should be. The merchants of a small city are similar to an organized club or association, and to do the very most for the city in which they are doing business they must co-operate in business and in their publicity efforts. It will be shown in discussions through these columns next week that it is for the mutual benefit of merchants to co-operate with one another, especially in adopting measures for holding trade in their own town.

SUCCESSFUL WEEK

Booster Week for the Evening News has been a success. The fact has been brought out very clearly that the masses of the people appreciate the existence of a daily paper in this community. The people also recognize the fact that if a daily paper is supported in the community it is up to the people to support it. They have learned that the more generous the support the stronger the paper and the greater service it can be to the community. In short, all agree that a daily paper in a city of the population of Glendale is a community institution, and as such it deserves the support of the people of the territory in which it circulates.

Fortunately, Glendale is made up of a class of people who like to be a part of the community in which they live. They are ready to boost for everything that is truly for making a better Glendale, and that is the reason why so many people have boosted for the Evening News this week, and they have declared that they will keep on boosting, so Booster Week for the local daily paper does not end with the setting of today's sun. A thousand thanks to those who have spoken kind words about the Evening News this week, and a thousand thanks to those who will in the future see fit to speak kind words about the little daily paper.

THE GUNS IN SUSSEX

MISS PENN, IN ENGLAND, REMEMBERS OLD HOME IN GLENDALE

Many Glendale people will be glad to hear from the Penn family, formerly residents of Glendale, now living in Five Ashes, Sussex, England, at their home which they have named Pasadena. In remitting check for subscription, Miss Minnie M. Penn writes:

"The paper is always welcome, bringing as it does news of old-time friends and acquaintances in the far away, but still remembered one-time 'home town' of us Penns. I do want to say from us all what a pleasure it is to be able to claim 'Old Glory' as 'one of us' and America as our ally. The same time-worn Stars and Stripes and Union Jack which have so often hobnobbed together in Glendale do the same on the flag pole here at Pasadena in Sussex.

"Seeing the name of Conan Doyle mentioned in your paper recently, I am inclosing some verses written by him a few weeks ago regarding the sound of the guns at the front. We who are nearer the coast hear them even more clearly than he does, and

DINNER PARTY

Mrs. Calvin Whiting entertained on Thursday evening with a dinner given at her home, 1442 West First street. Covers were laid for ten. The color scheme was pink and white and green. Beautiful white chrysanthemums were used with ferns. The out of town guests were Dr. and Mrs. W. O. Henry and Miss Henderson of Los Angeles, Dr. and Mrs. John H. Shedd of Occidental College, Miss Catherine Shedd and Mrs. J. R. Shedd, mother of Dr. Shedd, who for many years was known in Persia, where Dr. Shedd was born, as the "Mother of Missions."

PROBATION OFFICERS CONVENE

The Southern California Federation of Probation Officers began a two days' session at Santa Barbara Friday. Dr. Jessie A. Russell, the new president of the California Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher Association, was among the speakers of note who addressed the conference. The Santa Barbara clubwomen have arranged for a large number of social affairs and conferences in club circles in Dr. Russell's honor. Among these was an elaborate reception by the Parent-Teacher Federation and other clubwomen at the Women's Club. There were 18 different organizations represented at this affair. Dr. Russell spoke at three large mass meetings while in Santa Barbara.

GRACEFUL DANCERS

Dorothy and Kathleen Woods performed a very charming dance yesterday evening in Hollywood, under the capable direction of their teacher, Miss Edith Lindsay. Dorothy, as a shy young country maiden, and Kathleen, as a careless, cheerful, whistling, country lad, danced to the music of Dvorak's "Humoresque" in such a radiant manner as to entirely captivate the appreciative audience.

CAKE AND COOKIE DAY

Next Thursday is Cake and Cookie Day for "our boys" of the Ninth Company, C. A. C., stationed on Dead Man's Island. Please leave all contributions at Chamber of Commerce on Wednesday or before 10 o'clock Thursday morning. The two former occasions of remembering our soldier lads were most successful. Make this, the third time, the best of all. Cakes will keep; so let every woman in Glendale send one in, that the boys may have generous helpings for several days. We do not know when our boys may be sent away to other training camps. When that happens the opportunity for performing these gracious, simple actions will be gone. Then it would involve much trouble and expense to perform any concerted action on behalf of these gallant lads in khaki. So let us give while the giving is good.

THE SNAIL QUESTION

J. P. Apple, of 146 South Orange street, Glendale, the man who is noted for having such a nice garden, wants a reader of the Evening News to tell him how to get rid of snails that are infesting his garden and destroying the vegetables. It was not until recently that these little pests began bothering his crops. Mr. Apple would also like some one to tell him why snails are so numerous in his garden when they are unknown in other gardens in Glendale.

In their new positions the Australians dashed back all counter-attacks with ease. The assaulting enemy troops were unable to reach the British lines. FRENCH GIRL ORGANIZED WOMAN'S REGIMENT

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

LOWELL, Mass., October 13.—Unknown, unheralded, a few weeks ago Emma Le Clair, a pretty, brown eyed French girl of 20 years, stood before a loom in a big knitting factory here. Today she is commander of probably the only woman's military organization of its kind in the country, Company A, First Woman's Regiment of Massachusetts. "We want to drill, to be ready if we are needed," Miss Le Clair said, in speaking of her command. "At least we can be used as messengers and can help in the war in many ways." Later this girl commander plans to organize other companies throughout the state.

OLD FASHIONED FAIR

RIVERSIDE DISTRICT "DELIVERS THE GOODS" IN AN APPROVED STYLE

Fair Grounds, Riverside, Cal.,
October 11, 1917.

Glendale Evening News:

What is so rare as a day in October (not in June) in Southern California, with temperature adjusted to perfection by the chiffon screen in the zenith and the fine weather, cumulus clouds in the top galleries of the encircling horizon! A resting nature was reflected in the landscape after filling to overflowing the market basket of mankind with the choicest production of fertile Southern California.

Under such conditions, the fair grounds, located in the visual center of a stupendous ampitheater formed by the rings of foothills and mountains, crowded with great tents, pavilions, buildings and the extensive section occupied by an unusually large "midway," all gay with painted banners, flapping flags and fluttering pennants, was most alluring.

The far-flung invitations to come to an "old-fashioned fair," together with the magnetic name of Riverside, made internationally famous by the orange, filled the trolleys and trains and the hundreds of autos on the converging boulevards with several thousand expectant visitors, and before noon parking space in the grounds, and even outside, was at a premium. Over 50 per cent of this throng was comprised of transplanted families, the heads of which, while taking it easy comparatively in this land of heart's desire, showed the effects of a half century's battle against climatic and living conditions "back east." Then there were the ambitious, modern young ranchers, with technicalities of fertilization, irrigation, fumigation tractoration and taxiation at their finger tips. In addition was a large section of the town

DEATH OF J. T. MERRILL

The Glendale friends of Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Merrill, of Sierra avenue, were shocked to hear of the sudden and unexpected death of their son, Jesse Taylor Merrill, which occurred Thursday, October 11, at Taft, Cal. Mr. Merrill resided at Bairdstown, but had been in Taft about ten days on some special newspaper work. He was found dead in bed Thursday morning, and a coroner's jury returned a verdict of death from heart failure. The deceased was born in Wisconsin 42 years ago. He had spent the summer at Wheeler Hot Springs on account of his health and had apparently improved greatly. He is survived by his wife and parents.

The remains are being shipped to Glendale, and will arrive here Sunday morning. Funeral services will be held Monday from the Pulliam undertaking parlors, and will be in charge of Glendale lodge of Elks 1289, of which the deceased was a member. Dr. C. Irving Mills will read the Episcopal service. Interment will be in the family lot in Mountain View cemetery, Pasadena.

PACIFIC AVENUE P.-T. A. BENEFIT

It was held October 12 at the Palace Grand Theatre. "Captain Kiddo" was the attraction, presenting Baby Marie Osborne, and not only was Baby Marie in the picture, but also in person, clothed in such a dainty little dress of pink and responding several times to the loud and hearty applause accorded her. Little Elizabeth Johnson presented her with a huge bouquet of beautiful carnations and fern as a token of appreciation from the P.-T. A.

The Parent-Teacher Association wishes to express sincere gratitude for the many kind favors shown this worthy association, and feels that special mention should be made of Mr. Osborne, father of Baby Marie, who so generously gave us this opportunity of meeting his famous little daughter. To Mr. Jensen, manager of the Palace Grand, who made this benet a reality, we owe unlimited thanks. PRESS SEC.

ENTERTAINED AT LONG BEACH

The members of an embroidery club who are young Glendale matrons were entertained at Long Beach Friday by Mrs. Mabel Moore, a member of the club, who formerly resided here. The guests enjoyed lunch at the home of the hostess in the beach city and spent the afternoon very happily in a social way. The occasion was enjoyed by Mesdames Nell Case, Laura Erling, May Knox, Lily Matthiesen, Mamie Matthiesen, Pauline Osgood, Gertrude Lusby, Genevieve Goss and Charlotte Goss.

A PIECE OF PLAID CLOTH

ADDRESS OF MRS. WM. RAMSAY BEFORE TUESDAY AFTERNOON CLUB

Every organization has an object for its formation, and the forming of that object gives expression to some want, some need or some desire. The foundation of women's clubs has been the outward crystallization of an inner wish to express herself in all matters that concern womanhood, and, through womanhood, the home, the community, the public at large. In nothing has there been a greater change than in the status of woman throughout the English-speaking world. Under the common law of England, adopted later by the greater portion of America, a single woman known as a femme sole, could transact business in her own name, pass title to property, etc., but if she married and became a femme covert, a married woman, she was no longer considered capable of conducting her own affairs, but required a guardian. She could not even bring a suit in her own name, but must bring it in the name of her next friend, like a minor child does now, and the law defined the requirements of eligibility of that next friend. The different statutes of the states have changed this law, and woman has come into possession of her rights as an equal with man, and though the state laws come from 48 different sources, they are on practically the same plane in this respect. Woman has now a legal entity.

She could at first find expression for her own personality only within the confines of her own home, but as time passed and customs changed she faced the necessity of an expansion of territory. Clubs have been in a great measure the bridges that have carried women from one state of civilization or education to another, and she should ever, according to the old adage, "praise the bridge that carries her safely over."

In this expansion of club life women have never abandoned the home as their chief interest in life; they have merely stepped outside its threshold for a wider view; to obtain something to carry back into the home to make it more worth while as a place in which to live and to enlarge her sphere of action in helping other women to make their homes better places in which to live. From the outset, woman's peculiar mission has been that of helpfulness, and the twentieth century woman's mission is to not rest content if her own surroundings are comfortable, sanitary, artistic and clean, but that the surroundings of her neighbor, her community, her town, her state, are comfortable, sanitary, artistic and clean;

DEATH OF PIONEER

C. G. Kellogg, of 301 South Central avenue, Glendale, father of Fred A. Kellogg and Mrs. Ada E. Rice, died at 2 o'clock this morning, aged 74 years. He was a member of Unity Blue Lodge No. 368, F. A. M.; Unity Chapter No. 116, R. A. M.; Glendale Commandery No. 53, K. T., and Al Malaikah Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S.

Mrs. Kellogg died about six months ago.

THE LOAN MUST SUCCEED

We must make this loan a success. We can make it a success. The failure of a single issue of Government bonds would be worse for America than a disaster upon the field of battle. We must never let that happen.

A few days ago I read the following manifesto issued in Berlin by the League of German Municipalities:

"If money talks, the President of the United States may learn by October 18, when the subscription lists close, that the echo of the new war fund given by the German people will have drowned out completely the clamor of unending protests to which his reply to the Pope has given stimulus."

Let us meet that challenge by a subscription to our Second Liberty Loan on the 27th day of October, nine days after the close of the German loan, which will make clear to the German military despotism that America marshals not alone her brave soldiers upon the field, her invincible Navy upon the high seas, her industries throughout the length and breadth of this land, but as well her financial resources, and that she is determined to use them all without stint and regardless of sacrifice to vindicate American rights, outraged too frequently by German infamies.—From Secretary McAdoo's speech before the American Bankers' Association September 28, 1917.

GERMANY REMAINS OBDURATE

Official bravado in Germany is kept up, and the press in great part takes orders and joins in helping to blind the German people to the realities. Nevertheless, as we pointed out last month, there was in the reichstag peace resolutions some gleam of intelligent perception. The German nation likes order and system, and it dreads the weakness of divided councils and of revolution. The best Germans do not see how to transform Germany into a liberal country without losing more of Germany's unity and strength. There is no such potent mechanism in the world as the German empire; but its mistakes of policy and method are now draining the vitality of the German people and will have to be atoned for through much suffering. Peace would come at once if German civilians and soldiers could do as Russia has done, and overthrow their masters and leaders. No people in the world are more capable of carrying on a great republic than the Germans; and their repudiation of autocracy would give them almost at once the intellectual and social leadership of Europe, if not of the world. The liberal revolution that failed in 1848 may be revived and may succeed seventy years later. But it must be confessed that the signs as yet are unpromising. The new chancellor, Michaelis, has proposed no fresh policies, and German political reform seems to be indefinitely postponed. It is said, that the leaders of the centerist or Catholic party, working through Austria, had some relation to the issuance of the pope's appeal for peace. But we must regard the vatican movement as inspired solely by humane motives and as untouched by diplomatic intrigue.—Review of Reviews.

URGE LARGER CHARITY APPROPRIATIONS

County boards of supervisors throughout the state are being urged to increase their appropriations for charitable work as a result of the report just rendered to Governor William D. Stephens, as chairman of the State Council of Defense, by Dr. John R. Haynes, head of the Committee on Relief of the State Council.

In his report Dr. Haynes says that because of increased prices, county appropriations for the care of indigents and orphaned children are much too small, for the demands which will be made upon them during the coming year.

Larger appropriations for the aid of indigent families with small children and orphanages are especially urged by Dr. Haynes.

In many cases, says the report, lack of sufficient sustenance, particularly milk, is resulting in many children in the state being slowly starved.

The request of the State Council of Defense to County Boards of Supervisors is that at least $14.00 a month be provided for the care of each homeless or dependent child.

THE GUNS IN SUSSEX

we can appreciate to the full the thoughts and feelings so simply expressed.

"With best wishes from 'Blighty' to the old friends and home in far-off California, believe me,

"Yours truly,

"MINNIE M. PENN."

THE GUNS OF SUSSEX

Light green of grass and richer green of bush,
Slope upwards to the darkest green of fir;
How still! How deathly still! And yet the hush
Shivers and trembles with some subtle stir;
Some far-off throbbing, like a muffled drum,
Beaten in broken rhythm overseas,
To play the last funereal march of some
Who die today that Europe may be free.

The deep blue heaven, curving from the green,
Spans with its shimmering arch the flowing zone;
In all God's earth there is no grander scene,
And yet I hear that awesome undertone;
Above the circling ridge's piping shrill,
And the long droning of the questing bee;
Above all sultry summer sounds, it still
Mutters its ceaseless menaces to me.

And as I listen all the garden fair
Darkens to plains of misery and death,
And looking past the roses I see there
Those sordid furrows with the rising breath
Of all things foul and black. My heart is hot
Within me as I view it, and I cry:
"Better the misery of these men's lot
Than all the peace that comes to such as I!"

And strange that in the pauses of the sound
I hear the children's laughter as they roam,
And then their mother calls, and all around
Rises up all the tender murmurs of a home.
But still I gaze afar, and at the sight
My whole soul softens to its heartfelt prayer.
"Spirit of justice, thou for whom they fight;
Ah, turn, in mercy, to our lads out there!"

The froward peoples have deserved Thy wrath,
And on them is the judgment as of old.
But if they wandered from the hallowed path,
Yet is their retribution many fold.
Behold all Europe writhing on the rock;
The sins of fathers grinding down the sons.
How long, O Lord! He sends no answer back,
But still I hear the mutter of the guns.

—Arthur Conan Doyle, Crowborough, Sussex, 1917.

brocaded satin court train and old English lace Bertha worn by her great-grandmother at her wedding. She carried a huge bouquet of Bride roses. Adding a unique and charming touch to the whole was Mrs. Porter's maid, a beautiful Japanese girl, who, dressed in the elaborate and beautiful costume of her country, including an immense sash of cloth of gold, acted as train bearer for the bride and performed her duties most deftly.

Rev. W. E. Edmonds, of the First Presbyterian church, performed the impressive ceremony as the bridal couple knelt on the white satin cushion before the improvised chancel. Following the ceremony, congratulations were showered upon the newly made husband and wife and an elaborate repast was served, the bridal party occupying an especially arranged table decorated with orange blossoms and tulle bows.

Many beautiful gowns were noted among the guests. Mrs. William Stratton Porter wore a charming creation of white lace over white satin. The mother of the groom wore black Chantilly lace over white satin. Mrs. Aiken was gowned in black lace over red satin, and Miss Rebekah Porter, sister of the bride, was lovely in canary pina cloth.

Mr. and Mrs. Thompson are on a motor honeymoon tour, after which they will be at home in Beverly Hills, where the groom resides with his mother, Mrs. James Thompson. Mr. Thompson is an active young business man of Los Angeles, well known in Glendale, where he formerly resided. His bride is dearly loved by hosts of people here.

Many costly and beautiful gifts will long be reminders of the wedding day and the dear friends who expressed their good wishes in the gifts. Among these was a beautiful bride's book in which the guests inscribed their names, presented by Mrs. Elmira Wright Aiken, mother of Mrs. William S. Porter, and dedicated to the bridal pair in the following original verses:

O Love! Author and source of life!
Transcendant, spiritual, entire!
Brood o'er these precious ones this night,
And let them feel thy shelt'ring power.

All trust and confidence be theirs
Since thou hast sanctioned in thy word
This union of two hearts as one;
A blessing on them is assured.

Our hearts are stirred to wondrous depths
Of feeling, ardent and sincere;
To cherish, guide, protect, defend—
As they in this new path appear.

Dear trusting youth, how fond thy dreams;
Absorbing quite all other sense;
'Tis well, not let the cares of life
Intrude to mar this bliss intense.

A moment—and your troth is given,
In self devotion pure and true;
A gift that savors most of heaven
This consecration means to you.

One faith, one hope, one destiny,
Henceforth in life be yours to share;
As each to each new strength imparts
To lighten all perplexing care.

So shall your days glide swiftly by
With new joys springing all the way;
Until the fullness of your life
Shall brighten to the perfect day.

OUR FIRST WOMAN'S RIGHTS PAPER

The first woman's paper to be established in this country for the definite purpose of spreading abroad news of the new woman's rights propaganda was the Lily, a tiny four-page weekly sheet, edited by Mrs. Amelia Bloomer of Seneca Falls, N. Y. This was begun in 1849, just the year after that famous first woman's rights convention called by Elizabeth Cady Stanton and a few other women, the radicals of those times.—Exchange.

WEATHER FORECAST—Fair tonight and Sunday, except cloudy along the coast. Light southwesterly winds.

Personals

The Glendale Sanitarium building is being improved in appearance by the addition of new steps in front of the building.

L. W. Bosserman, who has been in Laporte, Ind., for two months, attending to business, will return to Glendale Sunday.

Miss Elizabeth Porter, of 823 North Brand, left this afternoon for Santa Barbara, where she expects to remain indefinitely.

Mrs. John Garner of Astoria, Ore., has moved into Mrs. Laichinger's house at 239 North Jackson. The Garners expect to make their home in Glendale.

Mr. and Mrs. Newman Sherzer of Bakersfield were here to attend the Thompson-Porter wedding Thursday evening, returning to Bakersfield Friday afternoon.

Francis J. W. Henry, of the Henry-Brown Company, attributes Billy Sunday's great success in Los Angeles to the fact that the Sunday tabernacle cafeteria is supplied with the Sierra beverages.

Thomas M. Furst and Miss Katherin O'Leary are new employes in the public service department of the city of Glendale, both of them having been on duty there now for a month or more.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Davis, of the Flower apartments, left Friday afternoon for San Diego, where they are attending to matters of business today. Mr. Davis is teacher of mathematics in the Glendale Union High School.

The new Sunset telephone building in process of construction at 423 South Brand boulevard is having a very substantial foundation installed. The cement supports are reinforced with iron bars in such a manner that they will stand the most severe test.

Monday evening, at the Social Hall of the First M. E. church, there will be a reception given to the pastor and his wife, Rev. and Mrs. B. D. Snudden, celebrating their return to the church for another year. An informal social evening, interesting program and light refreshments will be provided. All members and friends are invited.

Mrs. R. M. Jackson, who has been visiting the old Kentucky home for the past six months, arrived in Glendale today. While gone, Mrs. Jackson had a very severe illness and was confined in a sanitarium for some time. We are glad to announce to her many friends that she has fully recovered and, needless to say, glad to get back to Glendale.

Mrs. W. W. McElroy gave a very pleasant luncheon at her home Friday in honor of Mrs. P. M. Petersen, who is soon to leave Glendale. The ladies invited were those on the Yosemite Valley trip of which Mrs. McElroy was a member. The decorations reminded those present that Halloween is near at hand. Knitting, too, was in evidence, showing that the soldier boys are not being forgotten.

If Pastor Cole, of the Christian church, Glendale, should decide to give up the ministry and engage in the mercantile business it would be the wish of the Evening News that he remain in this city, that his influence as a believer in newspaper publicity might have a wholesome effect on his brother merchants. This gentleman is surely a "live Cole" when it comes to the question of church publicity, as is evidenced on Page 4 of this issue.

The regular monthly meeting of the executive board of the California Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher Associations was held on Wednesday in the Security building, in Los Angeles. Dr. Jessie A. Russell of Glendale, state president, was in the chair. All parts of the county were represented, as well as many outside points. It was decided to hold the next state convention in Bakersfield in response to invitations from that city.

Mrs. E. C. Webber of Denver, Col., who has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Chambers, and sister, Miss M. L. Chambers, 142 South Maryland avenue, the past month, has returned to her Colorado home. This was Mrs. Webber's fifth visit to California, and as she has been more delighted with the country and climate at each succeeding visit it is very likely that her family will eventually come here to reside. Mrs. Webber took several automobile trips through Southern California with this in view.

SOLDIERS' BENEFIT

Mrs. Stephen C. Packer, of 1462 Riverdale drive, Glendale, will give a card party at her home next Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock for the benefit of Company 9, C. A. C., now located at Dead Man's Island. A charge of 25 cents will be made. Come whether you play cards or not. Lend your presence for a good cause.

and city dwellers, thinking of "Hooverism" and the home commissary department during these opening war days and seeking new ways to conserve family resources. And also, conveyed in fine limousines and touring cars, came a fair sprinkling of the older aristocracy of Los Angeles, embracing the opportunity of enjoying the "old-fashioned fair" and keeping in social touch with friends throughout the Southland—for they were there from San Diego and San Berdoo and Santa Barbara and Long Beach, too. And, finally, but of chief interest, came the Indians, a few wrinkled individuals even three generations back. But they came not in paint and feathers, sounding the tocsin of war. They came from the U. S. government Sherman school at Riverside; they came in modern garb, as a fine band of 58 pieces; they came as a full military company; they came as white garbed maidens, keeping fine step to martial strains, following the color bearers with the silken folds of "old glory" held aloft, and they came as troops of small girls marching, drilling and dancing. The romantic imagination of the present writer drew its chief inspiration in former years from Fenimore Cooper's "Leather Stocking Tales," and the impressions of various noble traits of idealized Indian character still abide, while the actual stamping grounds of the characters of these tales, the storied hills, dales and lakes of the Otsego region, New York, have often been traversed.

Hence the U. S. government pavilion housing the exhibit from the Sherman school at the fair was of unusual interest. This was one of the things not "old fashioned." It was modern and up to date. It was polytechnic in every sense of the word. There were scores of ogling young white people around the grounds, whose obviously untrained early years made an unfavorable comparison to the uniformed students from Uncle Sam's school, who were everywhere in orderly evidence throughout the grounds, taking in the sights and enjoying the fakirs and amusements.

But, referring again to the exhibits, some fumed oak furniture was creditable even to the "Stickley" trade mark. There was blacksmithing, masonry and carpenter work, engineering, draughting and photography, cooking, sewing, preserving and other household arts. But of remarkable interest was the penmanship, being of much firmness and beauty, produced by strong nerves and clear vision; both, perhaps, patrimonics of these young Indians from the woodcraft training of their aboriginal forbears.

An old Indian woman, making baskets and lace, was a center of interest. There were dolls, dresses and toys, made by the girls. A large oval space in the center, filled high with fine specimens of agriculture and horticulture, indicated proficiency, and that they lived off the fat of the land.

"Indian day" had been featured by the management as the star attraction for the day (Thursday), and the program was given in the race track before an audience overflowing the large grandstand, the bleachers and hanging on to the railing of the race track for rods on either side. It comprised dress parade by the band, marching and drilling to band music by the military company, marching and drilling with calisthenics by the groups of girls in white, of different ages, scaling of walls by a company of soldiers, and Indian running races. But, without explanation, the Indian pony races were cut out by the management and the Indian owner of the ponies told me he thought they did so to keep them as an attraction for Friday. If so, they are open to censure, as, without doubt, hundreds coming from long distances for this day were disappointed and strongly disapproved such tactics.

In another matter, common sense should have moved the management to suppress the venders of pop, peanuts, cones and lemonade during the track events. No "old-fashioned fair" could have produced a more insistent bunch of misdirected claquers. Ther raucous reasons for urging their wares were a "barrage" of bedlam between the audience and the track events. But perhaps the concessionaires employing the pimply peddlers were more to blame than the lads themselves. One could not help thinking that the dignified young Indian men in blue uniform had a better start in life than these poor white brethren. The comfort stations and eating facilities were ample and convenient. Dr. H. R. Harrower, of Glendale, was observed busy with Red Cross work. The ladies of the Methodist church managed a large eating tent bearing the inscription "Queen Esther Tea Garden." Their service was very satisfactory in purveying a fine brand of home cooking to a heavy demand at very fair (war) prices. The poultry exhibit was large and of high grade. The stock parade, preceded by the Sherman school band around the half-mile track, was very interesting and brought to mind the pictures of similar events at state and county fairs "back East," when the beribboned beauties seemed conscious of their prize merits before the admiring throngs. The dry farming exhibits from the Murietta and other districts were of great practical interest in this land of irrigation.

Displays of grain, fruits and garden truck hard to beat were produced at a saving of an installed irrigation system, the cost of irrigation and the labor of irrigating, all of which is worth while.

Mention of much else of interest is omitted here, but in conclusion and for the encouragement of the army of family "war gardeners" now enlisted everywhere, reference is made to the first prize display of 125 different articles produced by the exhibitor on one and one-half acres of ground (no matter where the ground was, it can be done anywhere in Southern California). The list is too long to catalogue, but they were all there, even including buck wheat for the old-fashioned East winter breakfast. Such spots showed the two pigs in the pen, the cow and calf, the poultry, the bees and the growing crops. Another display, the second prize, showed 75 articles produced from one acre of land.

The moral is that the soil of California, only a fraction of which is fully utilized, will, like Aladdin's lamp, when rubbed (or worked) the right way, produce marvelous results. The war gardeners of Southern California, like the mines of Golconda, are literally under our feet, and just as valuable. Yet we are asleep to the fact as a whole. X.

MUSIC SECTION PLANS WORK

The Music Section of the Tuesday Afternoon Club held the first meeting of the year Friday afternoon at the home of the curator, Mrs. Frank N. Arnold, 309 North Maryland.

After the reading of the minutes of the last meeting by Mrs. Frank Balthis, the retiring secretary, the ladies all joined in singing "America." The topics for the year's work were then assigned to the different members, and each of the 24 present promised to do her part.

After the business session, piano selections were given by Mrs. Roy Masters and Mrs. L. N. Hagood and vocal numbers by Mrs. Calvin Whiting and Mrs. F. N. Arnold, and were enjoyed by all. Mrs. Frank Balthis was appointed treasurer for the coming year and Mrs. L. N. Hagood secretary. The section adjourned to meet again in two weeks. A great deal of enthusiasm was manifest at Friday's meeting, and the ladies of the section look forward to a very interesting year.

GLENDALE GARDEN SOCIETY

The first meeting of the season of the Garden Society was held at the home of Mrs. Nanno Woods, 1222 Milford street, on Thursday evening last. It was unanimously decided that owing to the tremendous necessity for war work of all kinds, and owing to the necessity for devoting all energies and promoting all resources towards the maintenance of Red Cross work, the Garden Society will not pursue for this winter its policy of public educational lectures and programs. Meetings will be held on the first Thursday of every month at the residence of members, and the programs will be informal. At these meetings information upon home and vacant lot gardening will be furnished, and all persons desiring advice or guidance in raising of shrubs, flowers, vegetables, etc., are cordially invited to make use of these opportunities. The next meeting will take place on Thursday, November 1, at 1222 Milford street, at 7:30 p. m., when Miss Olive Williams will bring books, pictures and specimens and speak on "What I Learned of Floriculture at Berkeley University."

"United We Stand"

Soliciting you to secure life insurance from us is simply inviting you to co-operate with us in protecting each other against the hazard of premature death or of poverty in declining years. The principle is exactly the same as asking you to join any good fraternal order, the chief difference being that the benefits we offer are specific and guaranteed. One is just as mutual as the other, however, and if you have the qualifications—physical, moral and financial, you can share all the good things which experience, honor and keen judgment have built up. Let me tell you about our fine Company.

Beautiful 1918 Maxwell Now On Exhibition

Without altering the world champion motor, the famous perfected clutch and transmission or the mighty axles, the Maxwell builders have produced a new wonder car, far superior in construction and in appearance to anything yet turned out by the Maxwell factories—we have this new and beautiful car—come and see it.

The car is larger and roomier, for one thing—the wheelbase has been increased six inches.
It is also a stronger and more rigid machine for the road.
The frame is now six inches, instead of three inches deep.
And the body rests directly on this powerful frame, instead of on brackets extending from the sides, as in the past.
Do you know what that means?
It means this: The firmness with which the wheels grip the road and the steadiness of the car at high speed give you a sense of security such as you have been able to enjoy before only in cars shackled with a battery of shock absorbers.

This New Car is 50 Pounds Lighter

There's a marvel of engineering for you, friends!
The car is made bigger and stronger—and yet actually lighter.
This means greater ease and comfort on the road.
More than that—it means greater economy.

And the Maxwell before was the most economical 5-passenger car in the world.
Compensating underslung rear springs—the last word in spring suspension—mark this wonderful Maxwell of 1918.
They mean greater comfort—greater economy, by lessening wear and tear on the car.

Maxwell Now Has the Style of the Costliest Cars

The new Maxwell is a car of great beauty.
It has a sloped windshield and rakish lines never before produced in any car costing less than $1200.
Its good looks now equal its proved mechanical efficiency.
The new upholstery is richer and gives a new comfort.
Inside and out the new 1918 Maxwell is a perfected car.
We're proud to sell it.
You'll be proud to own one.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

Last Sunday George, the pastor, stated that he was going to repeat some of the sermons which he had preached right here in Glendale. Do you not think that strange? No, Henry Ward Beecher said "that a sermon that was not worth repeating was not worth giving the first time." The pastor stated that he still had bundles of sermons which he had used elsewhere from which he had not yet removed the binding string, and a number of new sermons in the making. Bring Mary and the children and come over Sunday and see what you think of this repeating business. These are interesting sermon topics which the pastor announced.

GRETNA GREEN

The last blow to Gretna Green as a clearing house for marital romance was dealt in 1856, when the Scottish law made it necessary for one of the contracting parties to reside three weeks in Scotland before the marriage could be performed.

to see that education is fostered, the law administered not alone for her own good but for the good of all whose lives touch hers. Thus she learned the value of organization, the advantage of moving in large bodies. Club life means the merging of individual rights and opinions into community rights. The chief difference between woman in her own home life and club environments is that in her own home woman is mistress of all she surveys, while in club life she bows to rule, order, system, law and the will of the majority. When woman steps from under her own roof into the forum of public affairs she comes in contact with systems, business and otherwise, inaugurated and regulated by man, and she must be equal to man in the way she meets the requirements imposed by those systems. Therefore, we find in the clubs a beneficial training that we do not always receive elsewhere, a discipine that is salutary. This training takes the place to a certain extent of the training that every man receives in business as a matter of course, a training that enables him to work in harmony with his co-workers, to make reports, to follow instructions accurately, etc. If we have never had this experience and the clubs did nothing else than to give it to us, it would be worth while to belong to them.

If we find in clubs that which we seek, that element of usefulness we desire, the first requisite in our club life is progress. We must progress. We must add new interests, find new ways of doing things. We can not always stay in a rut; and if yesterday we had a favorite way of doing something that is obsolete today, let us abandon the ways of yesterday and adopt the new ones of today, or, if necessary of tomorrow, remembering always that the difference between radicalism and conservatism lies in making haste slowly. One of the most striking characteristics of the West is its receptivity to new ideas. In some of the older portions of the Eastern states society is bounded on the north by its bank account, on the south by its family history, on the west by conventionality and on the east by Mother Grundy; but the West has so far refused to become moored to any ironclad rule of human conduct; it still points toward the future and says to all comers, Show me a new and a better way and I will follow it. In the natural world if water becomes stagnant, it is rendered impure. Constant activity is required to keep it pure. The law also holds good to a great extent in human affairs. Constant activity is the best antidote to stagnation; and if we are active and progressive, and all have a share in these activities, we can each one truly say, like the Latin student. "Of these empires I am a part."

Into what channels then shall we direct our combined energies? Our own motto is, "In unity there is strength." This motto is peculiarly applicable to the present day. Unity, patriotism and loyalty are the great trinity of virtues needed by the nation, and, to a lesser extent, by every organization throughout the land. The unity of thought propelling the knitting needles that are flying throughout the country at present is like the working of machinery in some vast factory. All this human machinery has been set in operation, saving to the government the expense of buildings and labor, and a better article is being turned out by woman workers than steel mills could manufacture. In common with all other clubs, we are offering our services to our country in loving devotion; but toward what end are we working? What is the goal toward which we are heading? We are working through war toward peace—a peace greater than the peace of our own nation. World peace is something toward which women can aim, even if they aim high and strike low. The League of National Unity just organized announces as one of its principles that "the war we are waging is a war against war." And what results may we reasonably hope to achieve by our efforts? The same results that constant action, patience and co-operation obtain in any field. We look upon the great cataclasmic forces of nature as being the ones that accomplish the most telling results—the earthquake, the flood, the tornado. The changes wrought by these giant powers are indeed at times fearful and wonderful, yet they can not compare with the effects of what we might term the silent, small influences of nature—the rain, the frost, the snow. Erosion is one of the most potent agents in modeling and shaping the world. The frost by ceaseless endeavor can crack and wear the hardest surface. The snow by the weight of countless feather crystals can break down strong buildings. In the same measure can the power of public opinion, persisted in, melt and beat down the most granitic of prejudices, the most solid mountain of custom. One of the mountains that rises in the pathway of the world is war. The whole Caucasian race is in reality one family. When we contemplate the prospect, remote though it might be, of the destruction of that race by family quarrels, we are viewing a possibility made reasonable by history. Some of the greatest nations in the world, including those that had attained the highest civilization, have been wiped out of existence by being weakened by these quarrels to the extent that they could offer no resistance to conquering races. Carthage is a name that is written in dust. The glory of Greece exists only in the shadows of the tombs. The control of India has been lost to a foreign nation. Spain was for centuries a battling ground for the Arabs. The conquest of Mexico by Spanish invasion has resulted in 400 years of anarchy, thirty years being the longest single period of continued peace since the conquest. In all of these instances a weakened resistance from repeated wars gave a conquering foe the advantage. When we reflect upon these examples, it is women, the principal guardians of human life, who should seek eventually to enforce the doctrine we have promulgated, that every one is entitled to "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness" until nations regard war as we regard now the living sacrifices of the Aztecs. Remembering that persecution for witchcraft was once practiced in America, that imprisonment for debt once existed, that slavery was almost universal, and that all of these have been abolished by enlightened thought, does this seem an improbable task, too great to undertake?

There are other things for which we may strive.

We can devote our time, and we do, to fostering education and the arts.

We can turn our attention to civics and keep our community clean.

We should, and I think we do, cooperate with the government in the conservation of food.

We can practice philanthropy to the best of our ability. Under existing conditions the demands upon our philanthropic committees may be heavier than usual.

We can establish a clearing house of good cheer and kindness for those who are oppressed by fears and burdens. We can, as one club president has expressed it, "make smiling our vocation." We can do our work cheerfully.

We can promote good fellowship, good comradeship and sociability among our members. This concerns particularly the new member. Every year we have new members entering our circle. Some of them are here in a new land, among new faces and different customs. They necessarily for a time miss their friends, their accustomed welcome at the firesides of the people they have known. During this period of readjustment a friendly greeting, a handshake, a few introductions, mean much to them. Now, I know these are busy days. We have a courtesy and a calling committee to serve our new members when the club can not as a whole, yet we shall be doing oftentimes a real service if as many as possible of us can say to our newcomers the substance of the lines from "Hiawatha":

"When you come so far to see us
All our town in peace awaits you;
All our doors stand open for you;
You shall enter all our wigwams
For the heart's right hand we give you."

And to the new member I would say by all means, if possible, join at least one of our sections. The value to a club of section work is inestimable. A good section member makes a good club member. The sections frequently engender an interest that the main club can not, because they come in closer personal touch with you. They give you an opportunity to develop your talent, your capacity for work. They enable you to become acquainted more quickly; they provide you with a helpful course of study, and your attendance at them enables the club to more quickly become acquainted with you. We have in the club seven study sections, all of them under capable leaders, and I hope every member, especially every new member, may find time to belong to at least one of them.

Comradeship and good fellowship are the bone and sinew of a club. In onr reassembling twice a month the value of our meeting does not lie so much in listening to programs as it is that we gain something from each other and our association together. By our aims the purposes for which we are banded together, the ideals we cultivate, we are giving to the club a permanent character. We are weaving a fabric to endure. As long as our community lasts our club will live. And may we never forget that it is not a fabric of one idea, one color only, but crossed and recrossed by many colors, woven by the varied tastes and fancies of many members, and that all have a share in the weaving. For the coming year let us weave it of threads that are strong and substantial, threads that are not too somber, but intermingled with the dark colors, and the shadows that will necessarily fly through the shuttle of the year, let us have some bright threads of optimism, some golden threads of gladness.

As for myself, I am somewhat in the position of Jimmie's chameleon. Little Jimmie had a chameleon, and when his father came home from business one day he missed the chameleon. "Did he escape?" he asked Jimmie. Jimmie said: "No; I put him on a piece of blue cloth and he turned blue; then I put him on a piece of red cloth and he turned red; then I put him on a piece of green cloth and he turned green, and then I put him on a piece of plaid cloth and he busted trying to make good." Having been tried out during the last few years on two or three of the different color portions that constitute the working pattern of our club, I will endeavor, with your co-operation, to make good, even though I "bust" in the doing of it, on the whole of this piece of plaid cloth, the Tuesday Afternoon Club.
